Athlete

In an article by the Sacramento Bee (below), the title says is all! Most of our native athletes are faced with unfair stigmas and therefore never reach their full potential according to Tj.

Native Americans are still associated with unfair stigmas. Here's how I'm breaking them | Opinion

Unlike other natives, Tj has been able to overcome such prejudices. He gives credit to both his family and Tribe.

Tj talks about growing up in a rural area, being faced with negative stereotypes and stigmas such as addiction, domestic violence, and poverty. Because of such prejudices many believed he would not succeed past high school.

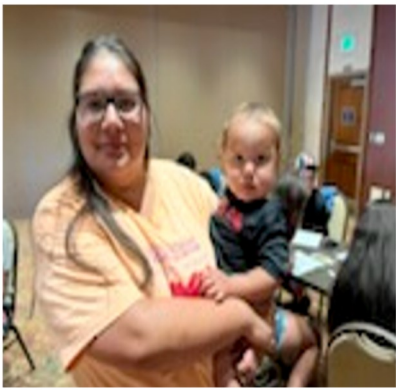

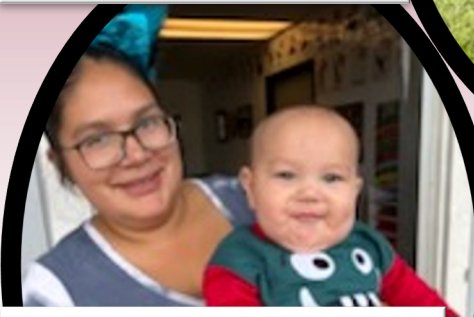

Tj Talamoni Marcks thanks the HPUL Tribe

for programs they provide that were critical to his success such as scholarship opportunities and student housing.

Tj graduated from Santa Rosa Junior College to further pursue his education at Utah Tech University, a Division 1 school in St. George, Utah. He is now pursuing a degree in sociology while playing football!

Best of Luck Brianna...

Brianna Jackson, now former Education Coordinator resigned on 8/11/23 to further her skills at the HPUL Call Center. Brianna was a huge asset to the team! She made a huge impact in a short time while working with the youth and families. She will be greatly missed!
